Governor Rajendra Vishwanath Arlekar on Friday said that Kerala's development was pivotal for the advancement of India and called for a collective effort from the State's knowledge community to help the country realise its goals.

Mr. Arlekar, addressing a brainstorming session on "Kerala@2047" on the Rajiv Gandhi Centre for Biotechnology (RGCB) campus here, said that India was not only aspiring to be an economic power by 2047, but it was aiming to be a model to the world by presenting a concept of development that is human-centric and is rooted in its traditional knowledge system, according to a released issued by the RGCB.

The event was organised by the Vijnana Bharati in association with RGCB.
